

Call for Articles

CMEA News is the official publication of the Connecticut Music Educators' Association. It is published and distributed to over 1,300 members, college chapters, as well as State and National MENC members four times a year. CMEA News is your professional journal and depends on articles from the membership to advance music education within the State of Connecticut. Material is accepted throughout the year.

Articles should be focused on a clearly defined topic with material that has been outlined and may be supported. Your article should have broad interest and appeal written in a clear easily understood language. Articles should be enhanced with current photos, art work, charts, manuscripts, etc. whenever possible. Refrain from writing that may be perceived as a speech. CMEA reserves the right to edit work where necessary after consultation with the writer.

Submissions are accepted as standard word processing electronic files of approximately 1000 words attached to emails. Footnotes and references should be in MLA style, APA style for research articles. Electronic images should not be inserted into articles but sent as separate files. Short news announcements are always welcomed. Please include complete information about yourself when you submit your article. Submissions should be sent directly to: editor@cmea.org.

The opinions expressed in articles, news items, and updates do not necessarily represent the views of the editor, CMEA News, or the Connecticut Music Educator's Association.
